

RE: Permission to use table

MrqhV/#Hd}dehWk

Sent: Z hgghvgd|/#hshwp ehU#B7/#5346#4=7:#DP #To: m rqwjr5C vdg1u1frpCc: dp hqwrC α|rølhgx#

Thank you!

Elizabeth H. Jones

Acting Chair, Department of Business and Economics

Assistant Professor of Business

Notre Dame of Maryland University

-----Original Message-----

From: jmontgo2@san.rr.com [<mailto:jmontgo2@san.rr.com>]

Sent: Wednesday, September 04, 2013 11:47 AM

To: Jones, Elizabeth

Subject: Re: Permission to use table

Yes, you have permission to use the matrix of traits on page 62. You do not need to make it so hard to get to: Dr. KeirseY would be pleased that you found it useful.

Jan KeirseY Montgomery.

---- "Jones wrote:

> Jan,

>

> As a follow-up to my phone call, I am preparing a teaching note to go along with a short case study in the Journal of Critical Incidents. While the case is published, the teaching note is held in the journal archives and only made available to instructors upon request. In the teaching note, I instruct students to KeirseY.com to take the KeirseY Temperament Sorter II, explore their results on the site and to bring their printouts to class. I direct instructors to various pages of David KeirseY' s 1998 Please Understand Me II under the Prometheus imprint using proper citations.

>

> I would also like to include the matrix of traits that appears on page 62 (and several other places) because it captures the essence of all the temperaments on a single page and helps to make the teaching points very quickly. I would like to include the table with your permission.

>

> Thank you for considering my request.

>

> Beth

> Elizabeth H. Jones

> Acting Chair, Department of Business and Economics Assistant Professor > of Business Notre Dame of Maryland University

>

>

>